Let Me in all is well and all is good, and ev'-ry-one belongs. And lightly hap-pi-ly they're ev-er-after-ing. But when I glad you've come" is whis-pered in the breeze. But when I en-ter the king-domw of dreams and face the en-ter the spring of my dreams just like the prom - ise of all I can be. will they wild - flow' r that bursts on the scene. will I see me as a heroine? Tell me, will they let me find my place with a gentle wind.

And

in? I in?

Faster

if a heart's breaking a part of me's aching to show them how much that I care. But if no-one lets me or turns and forgets me, then how, how can I share? There is a part in fairy tales that's very near the end, the princess and the prince proclaim their love. And hearts are healed and souls are changed, and two blend into one. All orchestrated by the stars above. But when I stand at the door of my dreams and face a lonely heart calling for me. I could fill that emptiness within, if that heart would let me in. Won't_
